

A Quick Trip to Pittsburgh, PA

The below itinerary was specially created for you by Chicago Food Girl to immerse yourself in Pittsburgh and see all it has to offer.

Start your morning off right with a visit to La Prima Espresso, a full-service espresso bar and must-stop Pittsburgh destination. After enjoying your fresh cappuccino, check out the Heinz History Center to learn about the history and heritage of Western Pennsylvania through interactive exhibits and tours.

Take a walk through the Strip District, Pittsburgh's historic market district, to enjoy some shopping and sight-seeing. The Strip District is located just outside of downtown Pittsburgh on the banks of the Allegheny River and is home to specialty stores, international retailers, and fantastic local restaurants.

After a long day of shopping, you'll be ready to settle down for dinner at Station, an Italian restaurant with an interior resembling an industrial train station. The restaurant is located in the neighborhood of Bloomfield and is a local favorite, known for its savory pasta dishes and craft cocktails.

After dinner, if visiting the city between October and April, attend a Pittsburgh Penguins game and immerse yourself into the spirit of the city. Before walking down the street to the stadium, stop by the Cambria Hotel Pittsburgh - Downtown's bar, Share on Centre that doubles as a home-base for Penguins fans, for a drink.
